SUMMARY OF FEDERAL FALSE CLAIMS ACT (FCA)

The Federal FCA (see 31 U.S.C. §§ 3729 ±3733) was originally enacted in 1863 because Congress was concerned that contracted suppliers of goods to the Union Army during the Civil War were defrauding the Union Army. 7 K H O D Z Z D V G H V L J Q H G W R H Q K D Q F H W K H J R Y H U Q P H Q recover losses it suffers due to fraud. Based on the Federal FCA, the government has recovered billions of dollars through litigation or settlement of allegations that corporations and individuals violated the statute and improperly obtained federal health care program funds. Over the life of the statute, the Federal FCA has been amended several times and interpreted on hundreds of occasions by federal courts. The purpose of this summary is to explain the most significant elements of the Federal FCA and how it works.

Liability under the Federal FCA

In very general terms, the Federal FCA imposes liability on any person who knowingly submits a false claim to the Federal Government, causes another to submit a false claim to the Federal Government, or knowingly makes a false record or statement to get a false claim paid by the Federal Government. The Federal FCA also imposes O L D E L O v e r s e f a l s e c l a i m s ' Z K L F K D U H I D O V H F O D L P premised on improper actions taken by a person to avoid having to pay money that is owed to the Federal Government. Additionally, the Federal FCA creates liability for those who conspire to violate the Federal FCA.

Damages, Penalties, and Administrative Remedies

Pursuant to the Federal FCA, a person or entity that is held liable under the Federal FCA must submission of, a false claim (or made a false statement or record or concealed or improperly avoided or decreased an obligation to pay, etc.) and have knowledge of the falsity of the claim (or knowingly made the false statement, etc.).

FCA also provides that, if the Federal Government chooses to obtain a recovery from the defendant in share of the recovery as if the recovery

Notwithstanding the foregoing, a relator who files and proceeds with a frivolous qui tam action may incur substantial financial liabilities. If the Federal Government does not proceed with the action and the Court finds that the claim of the relator was clearly frivolous, clearly vexatious, or brought primarily for purposes of harassment. Such fees and expenses can be substantial.

e. Statutory Bars to Qui Tam Actions

The Federal FCA provides several circumstances, in which a relator cannot file or pursue a qui tam action, including:

1. The relator was convicted of criminal conduct arising from his or her role in the Federal FCA violation;
2. Another qui tam action concerning the same conduct already has been filed (this is a first to file bar);
3. The government already is a party to a civil or administrative money proceeding concerning the same conduct;
4. The qui tam action is based upon information that has been disclosed to the public through any of several means: criminal, civil, or administrative hearings in which the government is a party, government hearings, audits, reports, or investigations, or through the public release of records;
5. The statutory time period for filing a claim has lapsed.

f. Whistleblower Protections

The Federal FCA includes a provision which protects whistleblowers from retaliation from their employers. In general, the Federal FCA entitles any employee, contractor, or agent to all relief necessary to make that employee, contractor, or agent whole, if that employee, contractor, or agent is discharged, demoted, suspended, threatened, harassed, or in any other manner discriminated against in the terms and conditions of employment because of lawful acts done by the employee, contractor, or agent on behalf of the employee, contractor, or agent or associated others in furtherance of other efforts to stop one or more violations of the Federal FCA. Such relief may include reinstatement, double back pay, and

SUMMARY OF THE PROGRAM FRAUD CIVIL REMEDIES ACT

The PFCRA is a separate, but related, statutory scheme that provides for administrative remedies against any person who makes, or causes to be made, a false claim or written statement to certain federal agencies, including the United States Department of Health and Human Services. The PFCRA addresses lower dollar fraud, and generally applies to claims of $150,000 or less. The PFCRA provides that any person who makes, presents or submits, or causes to be made, presented or submitted, a claim or written statement that the person knows or has reason to know is false, fictitious or fraudulent is subject to civil money penalties of up to $5,000 per false claim or statement and up to twice the amount claimed, in lieu of damages sustained by the United States because of such claim or statement. In contrast to the Federal FCA, under PFCRA, the determination of whether a claim is false and the imposition of fines and penalties are made by the federal agency as opposed to the federal court system (with the exception of potential judicial review). See 31 U.S.C. § 3801, et seq.

SUMMARY OF STATE FALSE CLAIMS ACTS

Many states have enacted statutes similar to the Federal FCA that provide a civil remedy for false or fraudulent claims submitted to state health care programs, including primarily Medicaid. Like the Federal FCA, several of the State FCAs include qui tam provisions that allow enforcement through whistleblower actions and protect whistleblowers from retaliation. Moreover, several states have civil and/or criminal laws penalizing the submission of false claims to a state health care program. A summary of those civil and criminal laws is below.

PLEASE NOTE: Although we provide a summary of each of the State FCAs, this does not mean that each State FCA applies directly to the DaVita-affiliated entity with which you work. In addition to the False Claims and Whistleblower Protection Act, Indiana also criminalizes false Medicaid claims. The statute covers the following actions of any person who knowingly and intentionally:

- Makes, utters, presents, or causes to be presented to the Medicaid program under IC 12-15 a Medicaid claim that contains materially false or misleading information concerning the claim
- Obtains payment from the Medicaid program under IC 12-15 by means of a false or misleading oral or written statement or other fraudulent means
- Acquires a provider number under the Medicaid program except as authorized by law
- Alters with the intent to defraud or falsifies documents or records of a provider that are required to be kept under the Medicaid program
- Conceals information for the purpose of applying for or receiving unauthorized payments from the Medicaid program

IC § 35-43-5-7.1.

Penalties: Persons who violate the Indiana law are liable for at least $5,000 per claim, plus up to three times the amount of damages sustained by the state and are also liable for the costs associated with the civil action brought to recover damages. The court can reduce the penalty to two times the amount of damages if it finds that the person furnished state officials with all information known to the person about the violation not later than thirty days after the date on which the person obtained the information, fully cooperated with the investigation of the violation, and did not have knowledge of the existence of an investigation, a criminal prosecution, a civil action, or an administrative action concerning the violation at the time the person provided information to state officials. IC § 5-11-5.5-2.

Under the criminal statute, Medicaid fraud is a Class A misdemeanor generally. If, however, the fair market value of the offense is between $750 and $50,000, the offense is a Level 6 felony. If the fair market value of the offense is greater than $50,000, the offense is a level 5 felony. IC § 35-43-5-7.1. A level 6 felony is punishable by a term of imprisonment between six months and 2 ½ years and a fine of not more than $10,000. A level 5 felony is punishable by a term of imprisonment between two and eight years and a fine of not more than $10,000. IC § 35-50-2 et seq.

Bringing an Action: Indiana law allows qui tam actions. IC § 5-11-5.5-4. If a qui tam action is brought, the plaintiff will receive between 15% and 25% of the proceeds recovered or the settlement. If the case is based on disclosures other than those of the plaintiff, the plaintiff will not receive more than 10%. If the Attorney General does not proceed with a qui tam action, the plaintiff will be awarded between 25% and 30% of the proceeds or settlement. IC § 5-11-5.5-6.

Additionally, Montana has enacted a criminal statute penalizing Medicaid fraud. Under the statute, a person commits Medicaid fraud when, among other things, the person purposely or knowingly:

Solicits, accepts, offers, or provides any remuneration, including but not limited to a kickback, bribe, or rebate, other than an amount legally payable under the medical assistance program, for furnishing services or items for which payment may be made under the Medicaid program or in return for purchasing, leasing, ordering, arranging for, or recommending the purchasing, leasing, or ordering of any services or items from a provider for which payment may be made under the Medicaid program

Makes, offers, or accepts a remuneration, a rebate of a fee, or a charge for referring a recipient to another provider for the furnishing of services or items for which payment may be made under the Medicaid program

MCA 45-6-313.

Penalties: A person found to be in violation of the Montana FCA is liable to a governmental entity for a civil penalty of not less than $5,500 and not more than $11,000 for each violation, plus three times the amount of damages that a governmental entity sustains, along with expenses, costs, and attorney fees.

Under the criminal statute, Medicaid fraud with a value not exceeding $1500 is punishable by a fine not to exceed $1500 and imprisonment not to exceed 6 months, or both. Medicaid fraud in an amount exceeding $1500 is punishable by a fine not to exceed $50,000 and a term of imprisonment not to exceed 10 years, or both.

Bringing an Action: The Montana FCA has a qui tam provision permitting a person to bring a suit on behalf of the government. Mont. Code Ann. §17-8-406. A plaintiff filing a Montana False Claims Act case may receive between 15% and 25% of amounts recovered if the State intervenes and prosecutes the matter. If the State does not intervene, and the private plaintiff successfully prosecutes the case on his own, he may receive between 25% and 30% of the award. The Court may reduce the value of the award to no more than 10% in an action that the Court finds to be based primarily on disclosures of specific information, other than information provided by the person bringing the action. Moreover, if the Court finds that the plaintiff planned and initiated the underlying violation, the Court may, to the extent the Court considers appropriate, reduce or eliminate the share of the proceeds of the action that the person would otherwise receive. Further still, if the person bringing the action is convicted of criminal conduct arising out of the violation, the person must be dismissed from the civil action and may not receive any share of the proceeds of the action. Mont. Code Ann. § 17-8-410.

Statute of Limitations: Under Montana law, a civil action must be brought within the later of six years after the date on which the violation was committed or within three years after the date when facts material to the right of action are known or reasonably should have been known by the official of the governmental entity charged with responsibility to act in the circumstances, but no more than 10 years following the violation.
